ALPINE FED THE FIREMEN

The Sun has been asked by Bert Fuller, secretary-treasurer, Alpine Fire Dept., to let the people know that local volunteers hosted visiting firemen last week-end to meals urgently needed during the battle with the blazing brush. Funds of the boys were nearly exhausted to the tune of about $60. This is the volunteers' own money; not taxpayers' and rightfully should be replaced by donations, especially from those in the burned area. Send checks to Fuller, P.O. Box 275, Alpine.

FIRE COULD HAVE BEEN HELD

Over 5000 acres of brush and trees were burned in the big fire last week-end. Much of this was in Alpine-Navy Hill, South Grade Road and Alpine Heights Road areas. Dozens of homes were menaced, and the Alpine village area might have gone before the flames fanned by a brisk sea-breeze.

The sad part is that Alpine's part in the fire might have been stopped at a proposed firebreak that property owners failed to give the green light for last year. The idea was started by Henry McKie, jr., then commissioner, carried on by R. Oeser, present commissioner.

He sent out letters with stamped return envelopes for reply, to 37 deed holders of lands running from Highway 80 on the north, to Alpine Heights Road on the south. The idea was to get rights-of-way for a 300' swath 3.7 miles long, to be cut by the county and state at no personal cost to the owners, and to not destroy trees or infringe on property in use.

Only 20 replied most of them favorably; 17 failed to answer. One woman complained she would not give such permission as she did not want the looks of her property spoiled.

Well, today hundreds of acres are well spoiled, they are charred hills that will allow winter rains to wash off tons of topsoil.

What we need in these mountains is more firebreaks, in fact every road should be cleared for 15 to 20 feet on each side so that fire could not jump as it did on South Grade Road last Sunday. -CI

ALPINE CAFE HAS NEW HEADS

Bert Fuller, POW, retired navyman who is with Al Hinkle as TV expert, and Emma M. Dyke, well known for her long service with the Log Cabin Cafe, have joined forces, taken over the lease of Alpine Cafe, 2225 Highway 80 Former lessees, Jim and Fran Hall, left for Ramona after Jim returned from the hospital where he had been treated for ulcers.

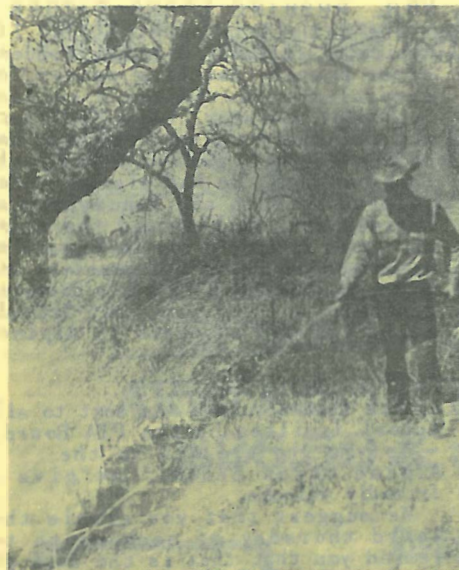

Bert is manager, taking care of the front end while Emma doubles there and in the galley. They open at 6 a.m. for breakfast, the earliest eatery in Alpine. Real home-cooked meals, short orders, beer and soft drinks are featured.

This week they are remodelling, with Johnnie Leech and Bux Crosby doing the painting. Bert is remaining with Hinkle until a reliable relief can be found. Fuller and his wife recently bought the Titus place above the village, but she has been in the hospital for some time, recently home, is helping at the new business.

Note- Tuesday afternoon Fuller was rushed to Grossmont Hospital suffering a heart ailment which has bothered him for some time, no doubt brought on by the day and night work he did in the big fire. At press time he was making satisfactory recovery, reported Dr. Carl Woodall.

ED ZIMMER BESIDE NEW EGG PROCESSING BUILDING WITH POULTRY SHEDS WHERE HENS LIVED THROUGH HEAT WAVE. True happiness is built on the solid foundation of being honest with yourself.

ALPINE HENS FARE WELL

A survey by the Sun after the heat wave last week reveals that Alpine's famed climate paid off well to poultrymen who lost but few chickens.

Ed Zimmer who has one of the largest plants in the county, all automatic, on his 24-acre place Adobe Hacienda above Alpine, lost only 45 birds, 8 being normal daily mortality for his 15,000 flock. This worked out to 1/3 of 1% mortality due to the heat.

Bud Archer lost some 45 birds, a low rate for his huge flock, and other henmen lost but few. Those who had birds on the ground suffered no losses.

Glenview Feed Co., lost over 300 layers, and some of the valley poultrymen lost upwards of that number also.

Most girls nowadays are convinced that opportunity no longer knocks at the door—he sits outside and honks.
